

BIOL 123 : Biological Anthropology

Human evolutionary origins and biology examined through a lens of comparative anatomy, the fossil record, genomics, paleoecology, evolutionary psychology, and cultural evolution. Emphasis will be placed on understanding adaptations of the human lineage through time, especially bipedalism, manual dexterity, dietary adaptations, life cycle adaptations, and brain growth.

Semester Hours 4.0