

ECON 313 : Economics of Growth and Development

Theories of economic growth and economic development. Application of these theories as well as considerations of evolving economic ideas to the study of local, national, regional, and global institutions in the formation of perspectives and policies relating to trade, poverty, education, and the environment.

Semester Hours 3.0

Prerequisites

ECON 151: Principles of Microeconomics

ECON 152: Principles of Macroeconomics