

POLS 310 : Parties and Elections in American Politics

Exploration of the role that parties, elections, interest groups, public opinion polls, and the media play in the political system of the United States, including discussions of the evolution of the American party system, the character of contemporary political campaigns, and campaign finance issues.

Semester Hours 3.0