

GNST 204 : Introduction to Libraries

An introduction to libraries and library science covering major library purposes, components, and functions in public, school, academic, and special libraries. Students will explore professional values, foundational knowledge, as well as career options in the field of library and information science.

Semester Hours 1.0