

NURS 300: Nursing Ethics

Ethical issues related to nursing practice profoundly impacts healthcare delivery in today's society. Students will explore foundational theories, concepts and professional issues and will transition into ethical issues across the lifespan and will conclude with special issues and specific populations. Students will apply scholarly inquiry of ethical issues and the impact in current nursing practice.

Semester Hours: 3

Program: Nursing