

POLS 223: International Political Economy

Reciprocal interaction of international political and international economic relations, the formation of industrial policy and trade policy, and issues related to international investment flows. Cases from Asia, the Middle East, Europe, and North America.

Credits: 3

Prerequisites:

Economics 151 and 152 and Political Science 105.

Program: Politics, Law, and International Relations